

There is a variety of ways that the Oceanside community can help the homeless and those at risk of homelessness. Many of the service agencies are working hard to collaborate and support one another as well as the residents of the community. Below are details on how to help some agencies in Oceanside.

Manna Homeless Society

Manna is a registered society, completely volunteer run, who offers emergency outreach and ongoing support to the homeless in our community. They provide survival packs to help the homeless live outside more safely. On Saturday mornings they provide food packages to help both the homeless and those spending most of their income on housing. In addition, they provide contact and genuine conversation. Manna works in cooperation with other organizations such as the SOS, Kiwanis, and the Salvation Army to help homeless and poverty stricken individuals and families of the Oceanside area.

The Salvation Army

www.salvationarmy.ca

The Salvation Army provides lunch out of their church kitchen on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays for those residents in need of a meal. They also host the food bank for the Oceanside Area in French Creek. Through funding and donations, the Salvation Army provides a large selection of canned and dry goods in their warehouse, which has been set up like a grocery store. To support the dignity of the clients, the food bank allows clients to go through and pick out items according to their preference and needs with a volunteer on a monthly basis. The food bank helps approximately 400 clients per month. If there is excess bread, canned foods and donated fruits and vegetables, clients are able to take these on a daily basis depending on availability.

The Salvation Army also provides hotel vouchers to the RCMP to help individuals in crisis. This provides individuals with a safe place to stay for the night when other services are not available.

The Salvation Army also helps individuals to secure identification, which can often be a barrier to accessing other services and employment.

The most needed donations would be:

- Cash donations for the Community Service Programs
- Food or cash donations to the food bank
- Excess fruit or vegetables from your garden for the food bank

The Kiwanis Village

Qualicum Parksville Kiwanis Housing Society is redeveloping the existing 20 seniors' only units at 250 First Avenue West, Qualicum Beach into 35 mixed units. The original units were built 40 years ago on land donated by the Town of Qualicum Beach; however they are now at their end of useful life and need to be replaced. As with all affordable housing projects, the town is contributing the developmental cost charges and municipal fees but the building costs still need to be covered by the Society. They are looking for donations from the community to help with the construction costs of these new units. Donations can be made to
